We Are . . .

Ann Crowley fights for triumph.

PEOPLE, that is what makes George Mason what is . . . full of spirit, pride, and vitality.

But it is the different types of people that give our school those special characteristics. George Mason students are lively, individual, friendly, and hard working.

A period of transition, a time of change. Beyond is a chasm of emptiness, limitless possibilities to lose ourselves in dreams. Yet, behind these hopeful spaces to create, one feels the pressure. And how does one cope with the burdens which are placed upon us, the responsibility of living for ourselves, making our own decisions. At this time there is no other way to exist than to live with style. Style, a word which more than any other characterizes the senior class of 1983. The flagrant air of self-assurance, the brightened smiles, the almost frenzied search for fulfillment, laughter, enjoyment, and most importantly the faithful friendships and the dreams. Who knows what lies behind this stylish facade who knows what lies. In the meantime let us feel this freedom and dream. Tomorrow we will be but echoes here.

And while we stand
On this edifice
    of fear
    of life
    of dreams to come
Can we not join hands
For this crystal moment
May we not weep together
Or smile through our tears
Ten years from now we'll
Not have this diamond to share
But we will have this memory
... Meanwhile believe in us.

Outlook

The Junior Class . . . TODAY . . . consists of a variety, a variety of interest groups, an even larger variety of individuals trying to find ourselves. As we continue to grow, these changes will be reflected by the Class of '84 — which in time will develop many different outlooks and dimensions . . .

Juniors

... The Junior Class ... TOMORROW ... will face the reality of having to live on our own. Perhaps, we will take an objective view of other thoughts and beliefs, instead of looking out of only one window.

JUNIORS . . . the pictures tell the true story.

Personalities

... Another sophomore class, not very much unlike those that have already 'passed' through this school. There is little to distinguish us from our predecessors: we hold the same title, have the same label, as other sophomore classes and will undoubtedly become equally as anonymous.

This is not to say that there is no potential, simply that the personalities that will crystalize in adulthood are just beginning to emerge from the restrictions of conformity.

SOPHOMORES

Ultimately, it is the individuals who will be remembered and not the class itself.

The sophomore year is one of transition and discovery, a 'lost' period sustaining neither the novelty of the freshman year nor the anticipation of the senior but is floating somewhere in between.

ROOKIES

“Do They Fit IN?”

Freshman

The Freshman class is still thought of as rookies, newcomers, and little people by the rest of the Senior High despite the fact that they have been at George Mason for three long years already. The Freshman class is also the smallest class in the school, but this year they were almost the loudest because they almost won the Spirit Stick. The class of '86 contains a lot of talented people: dancers, singers, pianists, and actors, as well as a wide assortment of jocks: JV Boy's and Girl's Soccer players, JV Boy's and Girl's Basketball players, a Girl's Varsity Soccer player, a Girl's Varsity Basketball player, and two JV Cheerleaders. So, this little class of little people has made a big reputation for themselves in this school.

ENTERTAINMENT

Homecoming

This year's Homecoming was a happy time for everyone at George Mason. Our football team was victorious, we had a fantastic spirit week, and the dance, sponsored by the Keys and Keyettes, proved to be a roaring success.

Spirit Week

Allison Walters wins the "Tackiest" contest during spirit week.

Two candidates for the Gong Show!

School Wide Fair

This year for the first time every club in school, supported by sponsors and Chairperson, Mrs. Jacque Droujinsky, held the school fair. Everything from a teacher dunking booth, face painting booth, and pony rides could be seen. The purpose of the fair was to earn money for all the clubs, and it was quite a success!

FBLA

This year the FBLA club raised money to donate to the Ronald McDonald House in Washington, D.C. For the first time at George Mason, the members sold and sent out holiday candy grams. Also involved in raising money were frequent bakesales. All in all, the FBLA club donated $50.

Lasso

This year in October, the Lasso staff received its most enthusiastic endorsement in the school's history as the Virginia High School League named the newspaper one of the most outstanding in the state.

Seeking to maintain such excellence, the staff had been working hard on special issues on the effects of divorce on young people, and the consequences of drinking and driving. The Lasso staff continued to polish its image as one of Virginia's quality high school newspapers.

Forensics

This year the Forensic team participated in the Virginia High School League and the Northern Virginia Speech League. Some events included: Poetry reading, Prose reading, Oratory, Extempore, and Spelling. In addition, some members participated in the oratorical contests sponsored by the service clubs in our area.

Also this year five members were sent to Regional competition in hope of going to State.

IT's Academic

This year's team was proud to be the first in a number of years to achieve success in the opening round of the "It's Academic" competition, and move on to a playoff round. In the playoff round the team finished a strong third behind tough competition. And although they lost, the Mustang cheerleaders and well wishers were present to cheer them on.

This year at George Mason, the faculty worked hard as ever. English teachers developed some new studies to enrich students' learning, the math department expanded to include computers. For advanced learning, outstanding teachers instructed IB (International Baccalaureate) courses in History, English, Biology, and Anthropology.

Our 1982-83 school year would not have been the same without the diligent work of our faculty and administration—both during school, and after school in which they engaged themselves in extracurricular activities. For without them, we students would have had no clubs or sports, not to mention the enriched learning we receive to better ourselves for the future.

REASON FOR BEING

This book is a portrait of the students, teachers, and staff of the 1982-83 academic year at George Mason. A team effort, this album is very representative of the active (if not overly busy) lives of these people, recorded this year as a memento for years to come. This documentation was hammered together, squeezed out of the time and energy of the students who took the pictures and organized and designed each section. It is what could be done with good intentions, circumstance and deadlines. Yet, it is more than a job done behind us — it is a visible record for you to consider despite any qualifications — to hold fast some memory of this time, this year.

Mr. J. Ballou

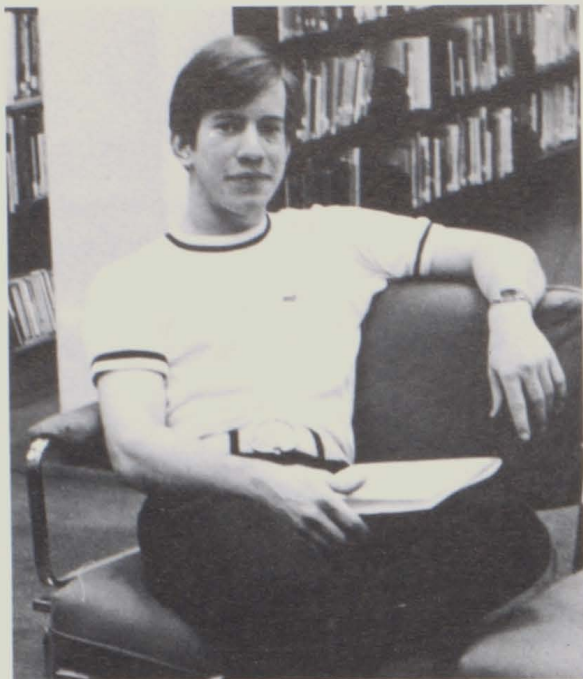

Erika Biesel, Editor-in-Chief, Activities (Entertainment), Introduction, Ads

A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR:

This year has been very hard work for many of us on the yearbook staff. Upcoming deadlines kept us all busy — running around searching for just the right photos to fit in the pages, making up captions caused us all to scream sometime or another, and nearing the final deadline when adding the finishing touches, a few of us almost gave up all hope of completing this book. As editor I am happy to express my joy in not only working on and finishing the book, but also realizing that the members had at least 10 different activities going on at the same time, they managed to do their best (which was quite good in my opinion) with no previous experience. No, we did not meet every deadline (because of conflicting schedules), but I would like to say for everyone that we are quite proud of our efforts. I would also like to express my sincere thanks to John Ballou for his undying help in compiling the book. This yearbook would not exist without him.
